Fire Plan Holder

According to SOLAS 1972 regulations and its subsequent amendments, all ships are required to carry at least three fire plans. One of which must be housed in a weather tight holder fixed outside the Deck House. Additionally holders are often located close to the point of access to the vessel for the convenience of shore based fire-fighting personnel. The polyethylene holder (length 345mm, diameter 125mm) comes with a watertight "O" ring seal. The lid is linked to the body of the holder by a chain, which prevents its loss. Two M8 captive nuts are fitted to allow easy installation. A silica gel desiccant is included, which when placed inside the holder with the plans helps to prevent condensation damaging the drawings. The holder is supplied complete with a photoluminescent fire plan label.

For added protection plans can be laminated or in the event of damage, redrawn by Maritime Progress's CAD design department, using the latest internally recognised IMO/ISO graphical symbols. See page 55.

These frames are manufactured from an aluminium extrusion and finished in a smart silver anodised coating. Suspended versions are supplied complete with hooks and suspension wires.

Perfect for suspended signs where wall mounting is either not possible nor practical, and available in a variety of sizes to suit our standard sign range.
